The Story.

Just five miles north of the city of Greenville, SC, Paris Mountain rises like a green oasis above the surrounding suburban landscape. On the northeast side of the mountain lies Paris Mountain State Park, a quiet retreat dominated by virginia pine, table mountain pine, northern red oak, and striped maple. The Park is named for Richard Pearis, who owned this land and traded with the Cherokee. His land was confiscated by the state when he sided with the British in the Revolutionary War.

Most of the park has been protected since 1890 as the Greenville watershed, making it one of the oldest protected areas of its size in the state. In 1935, Greenville Water System donated 1275 acres to the state to establish Paris Mountain State Park, which was opened in 1937. In 2001, additional land was donated by the Water System.

The health of the park depends upon wise use of the surrounding lands on Paris Mountain. The Friends are committed to keeping Paris Mountain State Park an ecologically healthy resource for the entire Greenville community to cherish and enjoy for years to come.

Thanks to Sandy Bowers for creative direction.

The Friends.

What we've done
& what we're doing.

- Development and implementation of educational programs, such as aquatic & forest ecology, for school children, teachers & Friends donors.
- Renovation and utilization of the historic bathhouse / Park Center.
- Development and maintenance of hiking and biking trails and recreational amenities.
- Annual Friends Day with events open to the public.
- Plan and stage formal educational events & workshops for teachers and students.
- Continuing support and communications with the park professional staff.

Our Mission.

To help the park provide recreational and educational opportunities that emphasize the important natural and cultural history of the park and to promote the park as an urban greenspace.
